Description:

Something is eating all the vegetables in Daddys garden. Isabella thinks it might be an elephant or a bear or even a penguin. Follow along in this who-done-it mystery of vegetable carnage. Inspired by a true story trip to the garden when author, Patrick McLeod, found his garden devastated by an unknown critter. Isabella then hypothesized it was an elephant who did it. Follow along as Isabella and Daddy try to solve this mystery using her imagination and logic. An Elephant in Our Garden, encourages children to explore all about animals and their habitats. The cover and four interior pages of this book have been infused with Augmented Reality. Bring them to life with your iOS or Android device that contains a front-facing camera. Requires an internet connection.

The book in itself is cute but after that not every page is AR which is the reason for purchase. It does not work well with Android but better with iOS. If you search iOS Brophy and download the app, it is still difficult to understand. I can see my granddaughter being disappointed that not every page moves. Disclaimer: this is my first AR book so it could very well be that I am a beginner. The title is misleading...only one page about an elephant. I gave it 3 stars cause the illustrations are cute.
